Dear Mamma, I received P.C. safely & was pleased to hear from you dear. You must excuse my writing before but have been busy. I have made my arrangements & I have also made Dollie a dress of that fawn stuff you gave Annie & it looks nice & here give our love to Dad & hope that you & him are keeping well we shall soon be home now for Amos. With love from Nell

Dearest My heart leaped up when Mr. D. brought your letter this morning. I was almost giving up hope. I couldn't tell what had happened. I am glad you're getting better & shall be ever so pleased to see you. Inquiries as to your welfare have been numerous and varied, remarks as to your absence with. Everything has gone smoothly with me to-day. This afternoon (thurs.) I have been helping Mrs. W. w. the Rectory all the time. It has been fine! This morning I shocked Mr. D. by informing him that a poem he had read was duplicated. My inclination, though now we dwell so far apart, when still not clearest to my heart, is to let it be. One thought of these I have so well 'not to let it be'.
